Course description: This course is designed to introduce students to topics and issues concerning the History of Psychology, and how those items relate to the present day. The course emphasizes thinking, discussing, and writing about these topics and issues in a critical and coherent manner.

Course materials: Students are responsible for obtaining the course materials. Unless otherwise stated, the course materials are available as free podcasts from iTunes U: Psychology Professor Todd Daniel, "The Story of Psychology" and "Great Ideas in Psychology", and Christopher D. Green "This Week in the History of Psychology" (TWITHOP).

Course policies: Course materials and items discussed in class will be on the exam. The class operates in a seminar format. Come prepared to discuss the topics. No recording is allowed. No computers (e.g., laptops, tablets, phones) are allowed. The only exception is during the lecture-section of the class.

Evaluation: Evaluations will be based on weekly quizzes, an exam, and class participation.

1. Weekly Quizzes (30%)

At the start of every class (except for first class and the exam day) you will receive a quiz lasting approximately 5 minutes. The quiz will concern one or more of the topics assigned for that day. Each quiz is worth 3% of your final grade. Missed quizzes will be assigned a 0. There will be no excused absences for quizzes, and no makeups. Your top 10 quizzes will form your grade.

2. Exam (50%)

The in-class exam (Week 11) will consist of short answer questions and one essay question. It will cover course materials and items discussed in class up to the end of Week 10. There will be no make-up exam in this course. This means that if you miss an exam you will receive a 0. The only exception to this is a valid concession. If you miss the exam and are an Arts student, review the Faculty of Arts’ academic concession page and then complete Arts Academic Advising’s online academic concession form, so that an advisor can evaluate your concession case. If you are a student in a different Faculty, please consult your Faculty’s webpage on academic concession, and then contact me where appropriate.

3. Class Participation (20%)

Based on quality not quantity. And if you don’t participate, your grade will reflect that.

University Policies

UBC provides resources to support student learning and to maintain healthy lifestyles but recognizes that sometimes crises arise and so there are additional resources to access including those for survivors of sexual violence. UBC values respect for the person and ideas of all members of the academic community. Harassment and discrimination are not tolerated nor is suppression of academic freedom. UBC provides appropriate accommodation for students with disabilities and for religious observances. UBC values academic honesty and students are expected to acknowledge the ideas generated by others and to uphold the highest academic standards in all of their actions.

Details of the policies and how to access support are available on the UBC Senate website https://senate.ubc.ca/policies-resources-support-student-success.

Cheating, plagiarism, and other forms of academic misconduct are very serious concerns of the University. In all cases of suspected academic misconduct, the parties involved will be pursued to the fullest extent dictated by the guidelines of the University. Strong evidence of cheating or plagiarism may result in a zero credit for the work in question. According to the University Act (section 61), the President of UBC has the right to impose harsher penalties including (but not limited to) a failing grade for the course, suspension from the University, cancellation of scholarships, or a notation added to a student’s transcript.

All graded work in this course, unless otherwise specified, is to be original work done independently by individuals. If you have any questions as to whether or not what you are doing is even a borderline case of academic misconduct, please consult your instructor. For details on pertinent University policies and procedures, please see https://learningcommons.ubc.ca.

Further information about academic regulations, course withdrawal dates and credits can be found in the University Calendar. You are encouraged to read this material. If you run into trouble and need information about studying, preparing for exams, note taking or time management, free workshops and advice are available from the Student Resources Centre, which can be reached through the School and College Liaison Office at 822-4319.
